ADDRESS CORRECTION REQUESTED RUSH — TIME DATED

MAY 11-24, 1985

TODAY & TOMORROW

In an attempt to help patients, families and other visitors find their way around campus, UCSF will install a new Bay Area Teleguide system later this month.

These informational computer terminals will allow patients and visitors to "access" 3-D maps showing where they are and how to get to their desired campus locations. In the first phase the terminals will be located in the lobbies of Medical Sciences, Moffitt Hospital, Ambulatory Care Center, at the Irving Street entrance and the top level corridor of Millberry Union at the garage elevators.

Also available on the system will be "Public Events and Tours," "UCSF History and Overview" and "Public Transit to and from UCSF." This UCSF information also will be accessible from any Teleguide terminal located in the Bay Area.

The second phase of this project will add a listing of all doctors' offices on campus with directional maps for each. Allen J. Balderson at x1541 is project manager.

The News & Public Information Services Department, under the direction of Michela Reichman, assistant chancellor—communications, has received two Gold Medals from the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE). One was in the "Best Articles of the Year" category for the "Ethics" article in the June 1984 UCSF Magazine written by Lisa Bain, and the other in the "Individual Fund Raising Publication" category for the 1984 UCSF Annual Report. Reichman is the editor of both publications.

Robert J. Lefkowitz, MD, the James B. Duke Professor of Medicine at Howard Hughes Medical Institute, Duke University, will deliver the Leslie L. Bennett Lecture, entitled "Adrenergic Receptors: Regulation of the Biochemical, Physiological and Clinical Levels," on Friday, May 24, at 3 p.m. in HSW 301.

The lectureship honors the academic vice chancellor emeritus and professor emeritus of physiology. It is an annual event organized by Bennett's colleagues and students in the Department of Physiology.

All health care providers who are interested in hypertension control are invited to attend a free, one-day conference entitled "Innovative Strategies for Blood Pressure Management" on Thursday, May 30, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Carr Auditorium, SFGH.

The conference will focus on behavioral and psychosocial approaches for the management of essential hypertension.

The conference is cosponsored by the SFGH Department of Medicine-Hypertension Clinic, the SFGH Alternative Therapies Unit, the SFMCOIP Health Promotion Program and the SF Hypertension Council. CE credit is available for $25. For registration information call 821-5139.

The following deadlines must be met by all departments in order for Materiel Management to meet fiscal closing deadlines and to ensure that orders on funds which expire June 30 reach Accounting in time:

- Fri., May 17: 1) All orders charged to general funds (19900), special state appropriation (205XX) and other specific funds. Please indicate on these orders "Funds expire June 30, 1985."
  2) Renewals of current blankets which expire July 1.
- Wed., June 26: Requisitions for stock items chargeable to 1984-85 funds.

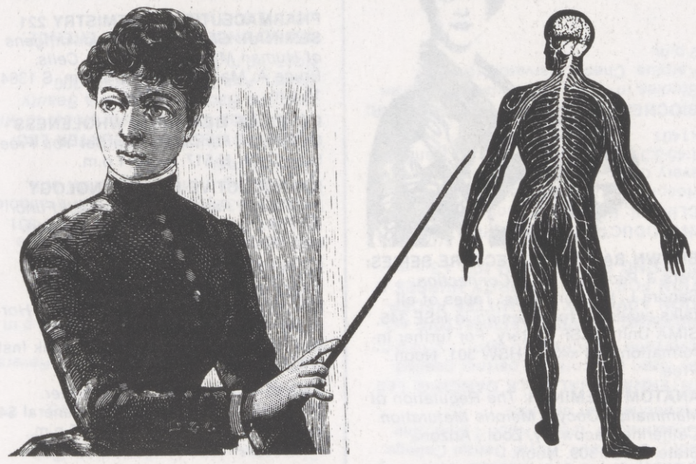
For further information on the above deadlines call Diana Hopper for purchases or Chuck Langley for Storehouse orders, both at x5761.

Many UCSF students soon will be looking for employment on campus during the summer months. Although research and laboratory opportunities are in particular demand, any type of position is welcome. Departments interested in hiring a UCSF student at full salary or as part of the Work-Study Program (federal funds pay 80 percent, UCSF 20 percent), should call Elena Robinson, coordinator of student and career placement, x4111.

The Research and Development Laboratory in Room U 10 has a one-stop computer repair service. The laboratory repairs IBM PCs and is an authorized warranty repair and service center for Apple computers. The lab can calibrate and repair disk drives, printers, PC boards and other computer accessories. The laboratory usually can respond to campus repair requests within three hours. For further information call Leon Johnson at x1593.

DEADLINE

Deadline for the next issue of Today & Tomorrow, covering the time period May 25-June 7, will be Tuesday, May 14, 11 a.m. Please send your copy to Allen Balderson, News & Public Information Services, 532 Parnassus Ave., Rm. 300, x1541 or x2557.



A long-standing experiment in medical education at the University of California—the UC-Berkeley/UCSF "Joint Medical Program"—has been restructured and formalized as a joint program of the two campuses.

Originally launched in 1972, this joint teaching program enables a limited number of medical students to spend the first three years of an unusual five-year program on the Berkeley campus, where they can take advantage of that campus' enormous resources in the humanities and the social and natural sciences.

It gives the medical student an opportunity for graduate study in such fields as economics, political science and philosophy, in addition to their scientific and medical curriculum, according to Harrison Sadler, MD, acting director of the program. Sadler also is UCSF clinical professor of psychiatry and family and community medicine.

The aim is to broaden the students' imagination and the scope of their education early in their professional careers, through an academic enhancement consisting of courses and guidance not found in the traditional medical school program, Sadler declared.

Students completing the program earn a Master of Science degree from Berkeley and the MD degree from UCSF.

Applicants must fulfill established requirements for admission to the Graduate Division at Berkeley and the School of Medicine at UCSF, and are selected by a joint admissions committee. Twelve students are accepted each year. Deadline for application for the 1986/87 school year is December.

In their first three years at Berkeley, students complete the preclinical sciences curriculum and fulfill the requirements for a Berkeley master's degree under the guidance of an academic advisor. They also study health policy and research methods.

In addition, students work with preceptors who are practicing physicians in Oakland, Berkeley and El Cerrito, and are exposed to various aspects of medical care at Highland, Providence and Merritt hospitals in Oakland and at Alta Bates and Herrick hospitals in Berkeley.

After three years, the students move

Richard Kay Root, MD, professor and vice chairman of the Department of Medicine at the University of Washington and chief of medical services at the VAMC in Seattle, has been named the new chairman of the Department of Medicine. Root will succeed Lloyd H. Smith, Jr., MD, who is stepping down in July after more than 20 years in that position.

A specialist in infectious diseases, Root's career includes several appointments in three major medical centers, including chief of the infectious disease section from 1971 to 1975 at the University of Pennsylvania and at Yale chief of the infectious disease section from 1975 to 1982, vice chairman in the Department of Internal Medicine from 1980 to 1982 and acting chairman the second year of that term.

Appointed the first Paul B. Beeson Professor of Medicine at Yale in 1980, Guenter Risse, MD, PhD, professor in the Department of the History of Medicine at the University of Wisconsin, has been selected as the new chairman of the Department of History and Philosophy of the Health Sciences. He replaces Gert H. Brieger, MD, PhD, who left last June to return to his alma mater, Johns Hopkins.

Born in Buenos Aires, Argentina, Risse received his MD from the University of Buenos Aires in 1958, his MA in history in 1966 and his PhD in history in 1971, both from the University of Chicago.

A member of the University of Chicago faculty from 1963 to 1969, Risse was assistant professor of history of medicine at the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, before going to the University of Wisconsin Center for Health Sciences in Madison in 1971.

Risse has written extensively on the history of European and American medicine as well as Chinese and Oriental medicine. His latest book, Hospital Life in Enlightenment Scotland: Caring and Teaching at the Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh, will be published later this year by Cambridge University Press.

NEWS BRIEFS

to UCSF for two final years of intensive clinical training with the UCSF faculty.

A joint faculty committee, including four members from each campus, will initiate academic plans and monitor the program's progress. The program will be formally reviewed every five years.

A search now is under way for a full-time chairperson and faculty for the Berkeley segment. The chairperson also will hold an appointment on the UCSF faculty.

Responsibility for the program rests jointly with the provost of Professional Schools and Colleges at Berkeley and the dean of the UCSF School of Medicine, according to a formal agreement by the two campuses.

Three UCSF hearing specialists are currently serving as presidents of major professional associations in the field of hearing impairment—the first time national leaders of all three major societies are from the same institution.

Roger Boles, MD, chair of the Department of Otolaryngology, heads the American Academy of Otolaryngology/Head and Neck Surgery. Richard M. Flower, PhD, vice chair of otolaryngology and director of the UCSF Audiology and Speech Clinic, is president of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association. Francis A. Sooy, MD, chancellor emeritus and professor of otolaryngology, is president of the American Otological Society.

In recognition of this distinction, the three presidents were honored at a special reception and symposium on May 2, cosponsored by the UCSF Center on Deafness, the Hearing Society for the Bay Area, Inc., and the California Speech-Language-Hearing Association (District I).

Nominations are being accepted through Wednesday, May 15, for the Graduate Division Mentorship and Research Assistantship Program.

The program provides research opportunities for ethnic minority and women graduate students who are in their second year of study at UCSF.

Nominations for the program should be sent to Clifford Attkisson, associate dean, Room S 140, and must include a statement of commitment from a faculty mentor.

The Graduate Students' Association (GSA) is sponsoring the annual Nursing Research Contest on Wednesday, May 22, from 1 to 4 p.m. in Room S 214. A wine and cheese reception will follow the presentations. Call Candy Clemens at x2233.

Root also was selected as "Teacher of the Year" by the Yale medical housestaff in 1982. Root holds honorary master of arts degrees from the University of Pennsylvania and Yale.

The author and co-editor of several books and numerous articles dealing primarily with host defense mechanisms and human phagocytic cell functions, Root has coedited with Merle A. Sande, professor and vice chairman of medicine at UC-San Francisco, six volumes of Contemporary Issues in Infectious Diseases, Churchill-Livingstone.

Marilyn J. Dodd, RN, PhD, associate professor of physiological nursing, School of Nursing, has been named an American Cancer Society Professor of Oncology Nursing.

The professorship, established five years ago to enhance cancer nursing education, will award Dodd annual grants of $25,000 from the American Cancer Society for at least the next three years. Another ACS professorship was awarded to one of Dodd's former doctoral students, Anaysis Derdiarian, now a UCLA nursing faculty member.

Dodd's research is aimed at helping cancer patients and their families cope with the side effects of cancer therapy. Since coming to UCSF in 1981, she has directed the graduate program in oncology nursing, and has spent the last several years conducting a series of studies on self-care behavior of cancer patients who are experiencing side effects of chemotherapy and radiation therapy. Her overall objective is to develop means for the nursing profession to improve the self-care and quality of life of cancer patients who are undergoing these treatments.

The Universitywide Task Force on AIDS has extended the deadline to Saturday, June 1, for proposals for research projects on therapeutic interventions for AIDS. Applicants must be members of the UC faculty on any of the nine campuses. Those in clinical professor and adjunct professor series and in the professional research series are encouraged to apply. Send proposals to the Task Force at 764 University Hall, Office of Health Affairs, Berkeley, CA 94720. For further information call Belinda De La Rosa at 642-0732.

The Police Department is holding an auction of lost items on Friday, June 7, from noon to 3 p.m. in the Millberry Union west lounge. Items to be auctioned include bikes, calculators, clothes, umbrellas, books and watches.

The first annual Career Achievement Award will be presented on Wednesday, May 15, to Dorothy Ford Bainton, MD, a distinguished researcher and UCSF professor of pathology.

The special award has been created by the UCSF Women's Faculty Association to honor outstanding women in the School of Medicine who excel in their academic, scientific and humanitarian roles.

Bainton will deliver a lecture at 4 p.m. in Cole Hall, entitled "The Pleasure of Work: The Joy of Origination." A reception will follow in Millberry Union. The public is invited to attend.

Bainton is one of 11 women to hold full tenured professorships in the School of Medicine. Her research, and some 70 publications which bear her name, focus on the normal and abnormal states of blood cells, especially in diseases such as leukemia. Since joining the UCSF faculty in 1962, she has served on numerous academic committees, both at national and statewide levels, mostly to support students, minorities and women in their careers.

In celebration of National Hospital Week, UCSF will sponsor several events including:

- The video program "Lifework: Caring for Patients at UCSF," produced by the 1985 Hospital Week Planning Committee. A behind-the-scenes look at the contributions of UCSF Hospitals and Clinics staff to the quality of care provided our patients. (See inside calendar for schedule).

Patients also will be able to view this 30-minute video via closed circuit TV.

- "Spend a Day with a Nurse Program," sponsored by Nursing Services. During the week, members of the campus community will spend one to two hours with a nurse on a hospital unit.
- Reception for UCSF minority nurses and nursing students on Tuesday, May 14, from 1 to 3 p.m. in the Park Room, Moffitt 286. Sponsored by the Nursing Service Affirmative Action Advisory Committee.
- Invitational reception on Wednesday, May 15, in honor of Elaine McKenna, RN, MS, this year's recipient of the Distinguished Nurse Award, and the five other nominees: Susan Alves-Rankin, Sasha Bade, Susan Barbour, Carolyn Buretta-Taylor and Sheila Southwell. Hosted by the Department of Nursing.
- Volunteer Interpreter Program (VIP) Brunch on Friday, May 17, from 7 to 9 a.m., honoring UCSF employees who serve as volunteer interpreters for non-English speaking patients. Call Nancy Vega at x1401 for further information.

A memorial exhibit for Troy C. Daniels, PhD, dean emeritus of the School of Pharmacy, will be on display through the month of May in the exhibit case just inside the front door of the UCSF Library, Room S 257. The display includes copies of awards and certificates, academic regalia and photographs of Daniels.

All UCSF students are urged to participate in a survey which will evaluate the UCSF Student Health Service.

Conducted through the month of May by the Student Health Advisory Committee, the survey consists of a brief questionnaire designed to assess student perceptions of various aspects of student health. Students also will be given an opportunity to make comments on any aspect of their experience at the Student Health Center. All responses will be kept confidential.

According to Clifford C. Attkisson, PhD, associate dean of the Graduate Division, students can be assured that the Student Health Advisory Committee will take their feedback seriously and use it to maintain and improve the quality of UCSF student health services.

Students can fill out a questionnaire at the Student Health Center, Room U 380.

David C. Sabiston, Jr., MD, has been chosen by the UCSF chapter of Alpha Omega Alpha as this year's AOA visiting professor. He is the James Buchanan Duke Professor of Surgery and chair of the Department of Surgery at Duke. He will be on campus Tuesday and Wednesday, May 14 and 15, and will speak on the subject of "Chronic Pulmonary Embolus" in a combined medicine/surgery grand rounds on Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. in Cole Hall.

That evening Sabiston will be honored at an AOA banquet at the Empress of China at 6 p.m. at which Kenneth A. Woeber, MD, professor and vice chair of medicine, will be inducted as the 1985 AOA Faculty Member. Woeber, who also is chief of medicine at Mount Zion, was elected by students as a professor who has contributed to their education and scholarship.

Thomas C.L. Chen, a first-year UCSF medical student, will be honored as one of five AOA research fellows and will receive $1,000 to continue his studies this summer on gene transposition in Bordetella pertussis.

Three UCSF house staff members—John Day, MD, neurology; Peter Demopolous, MD, and Mary Wilkinson, MD, both medicine; and 26 students from the School of Medicine's class of '85 will be inducted.

The smoking habits of people in Europe, South Africa, China, Denmark and several other countries and the oral health consequences of those habits will be discussed at the last in the series of School of Dentistry Dean's Seminars on Monday, May 13, from 12:30 to 2 p.m. in Cole Hall.

Jens J. Pindborg, DDS, professor and chair of oral pathology at the Royal Dental College, Copenhagen, will discuss "Global Aspects of Chewing and Smoking Habits."

One of the world's leading oral pathologists, Pindborg also will present the postgraduate course entitled "Current Concepts in Oral Precancer" on Saturday, May 11, in Room C 701, and the stomatology seminar, "Chronic Viral Disease of the Oral Mucosa" on Tuesday, May 14, at noon in Room S 664. For registration information for the postgraduate course call x1101.
